

DECEMBER 20-2008

SurplusTraders.Net's electronic parts and equipment web site lists many millions of dollars worth of brand new hi-tech parts and equipment. When good hardware becomes obsolete, and thousands of brand new parts are thrust onto the global surplus market to be liquidated at a fraction of their original cost, they can end up on this web site. Many of these parts are obscure, obsolete, extremely hard to find and often worth their weight in gold!

SurplusTraders.Net maintains one of the world's largest buy/sell trading sites for Hi-Tech surplus. Over 900 pages of online catalog describes, pictures, prices, indexes and cross references thousands of surplus parts for the electronics, computer, telecom, medical, MRO, communications and education industries. Pages are easy to read and browse. According to the company, the website is updated every few hours, and the newest 150 offerings can be viewed by going to:
<http://www.surplustraders.net/a/0307.shtml>

The site is backed up with real people, available in real time, by phone, fax or e-mail. Companies can advertise excess inventory free of charge, and interested parties can access the site free to view and purchase. The site also runs paid display advertising for parts.

Contact: SurplusTraders.Net
PO Box 276, Alburg, VT. 05440
TEL: 514-739-9328 FAX: 514-345-8303
Email: marv@surplustraders.net